3 Services and infrastructures of the University of Oviedo

3.1 The University of Oviedo

The University of Oviedo is one of the oldest universities in Spain. It started its teaching activity 400 years ago, in 1.608, thanks to the economic funds provided by its founder Mr. Fernando de Valdés Salas.

Initially, the Asturian University had four Faculties: Arts, Canons, Law and Theology. At the end of the XVIII and XIX centuries, it was consolidated and updated, satisfying the demands for new academic disciplines.

In the 20th century the University faced one of its most traumatic experiences: The October Revolution in 1934 destroyed the Historical Building and the entire cultural heritage inside. Ever since the democratic period, the University of Oviedo has tried to satisfy the demands for new courses, by the enlargement of schools and the creation of faculties and new campuses.

Nowadays the University of Oviedo is an institution that hosts more than 28.000 students and it has become one of the most outstanding universities regarding teaching and research activities in the fields of Humanities, Juridical and Social Sciences, Experimental Sciences, Health Sciences and Technical Education. That is why it has been recognized as a Campus of International Excellence (CEI).

Its educational offer includes graduate and postgraduate courses, university extension, summer courses and own Degrees and it's fully adapted to the EHEA. For further information visit: www.uniovi.es .

- Teaching methods

The University of Oviedo forms part of the European Higher Education Area (EHEA) with the other countries from the European Union. In 2009 it became part of the course that adopted the Bologna Plan, which mandated a series of reforms in the academic system:

1. Issuance of the European Diploma Supplement (DS), reinforcing the qualification system making it more flexible and comparable with other agencies and European universities.
2. Implementation of graduate and postgraduate Degrees adapted to the EHEA.
3. Establishment of a common credit system, ECTS (European Credit Transfer System), which promotes increased mobility of students.
4. Promoting mobility.
5. An emphasis on cooperation in curriculum development.

The educational model of the University of Oviedo is based on the student's learning, taking into account the student's workload: theoretical and practical classes, effort devoted to study and exams. Almost all Degrees include internships in companies or institutions, to reinforce the employability of university studies. Furthermore, the participation in activities related to culture, sports, solidarity, cooperation, and student associations are highly considered.

- Grading system

The grading system in Spanish Universities is based on the score achieved, from 1 to 10, on the following basis:

0,0 - 4,9	FAIL
5,0 - 6,9	SATISFACTORY
7,0 - 8,9	GOOD
9,0 - 10,0	EXCELLENT

In the University of Oviedo students who have taken their evaluation tests, get a numerical mark with a decimal. At the same time, professors can award outstanding students with Honors. The number of Honors awards cannot exceed the 5% of the students registered in a subject in the academic year.

The ECTS grading system used in the EHEA has been established as follows:

- A - EXCELLENT: Extraordinary performance with minor errors
- B - VERY GOOD: Above average with some errors
- C - GOOD: Good performance in general with some noticeable errors
- D - SATISFACTORY: Good performance with some significant deficiencies
- E - SUFFICIENT: Performance does not meet the minimum criteria
- FX- FAIL: A bit more effort is needed to get the credits
- F - FAIL: Much more effort is needed

The equivalent in numerical marks as per the Spanish grading system (10 points) corresponds to the following ETCS marks:

9,5-10	Sobresaliente	A (EXCELLENT)
9,0-9,4	Sobresaliente	B (VERY GOOD)
7,0-8,9	Notable	C (GOOD)
6-6,9	Aprobado	D (SATISFACTORY)

4 Living in Asturias

4.1 Main characteristics of The Principado de Asturias

The Principado de Asturias is one of the 17 Spanish Autonomous Communities. It is situated on the Spanish north coast facing the Cantabrian Sea and together with Galicia, Cantabria and the Vasc Country make up the Cantabrian Coast, also known as “The green Spain”.

It has approximately 1 million and one hundred thousand inhabitants, living in 78 different municipalities, being Gijón, Oviedo and Avilés the most populated.

The city of Oviedo is the capital of the Principado, and it is the main point for administrative, political, business and cultural matters in the region. Most University centers are located in Oviedo.

Gijón is situated in the middle of the Asturian Coast. It is a dynamic and tolerant city and it is the centre for industry and services, with the marina, five beaches, an intense cultural life and many museums and sports facilities.

Avilés, is another important town centre in the region, where we can find the Niemeyer International Cultural Centre, designed by the well-known Brazilian architect. Its historic area is one of the most relevant areas of the region and it was recognized as Complex of Historical-Artistic Monuments in 1955.

The climate, mainly Atlantic, with mild temperatures and heavy rain all year long, makes it easy to have rich and varied vegetation. The natural heritage of the region is one of its main attractions: almost one third of the Asturian territory has been recognized as Protected Natural Area, which is the largest one in Spain.

Apart from the natural beauty of the Asturian Coast, the little villages of the area, like Cudillero, Luanco, Llanes or Castropol, have a great cultural and historical value. There is also a great variety of wonderful beaches.

Food in Asturias is included in the well-known Mediterranean Diet, considered to be Intangible Heritage of Humanity by UNESCO. Asturian cuisine is one of the most relevant ones in the country and it combines the quality of raw materials with the professionalism of the cooks following traditional recipes.

Asturias is culture, nature and gastronomy, and, as the astronaut John Glenn said in the Prince of Asturias Awards ceremony: “it’s the best kept secret in Europe”.

4.2 The cost of living

The monthly expenses of a university student may go from 500 to 600 euros including accommodation, food and transport. It is advisable to open a bank account and to use a credit card.

Don’t forget to request information about this when you open your account. Finally, make sure you take into account the commissions for each transaction, annual maintenance fees, the cost of a debit/credit card, the possibilities of on-line banking and the location of cash points.
